Lookup.Q: Linq Where On Or Where Inner Join and Or I have a list of master/detail records. Master has an associated type (Parts) and the details records have a class with a type attribute (PartType). I am getting a list of master and details and now I need to filter the master so I only have records where all the PartTypes for the master match up to the PartType field in the Detail class. I have master.PartTypes = detail.PartTypes Then I tried detail.PartTypes.All(bt => master.PartTypes.Contains(bt)); Which does not work. I am thinking that maybe I need to do detail.PartTypes.Intersect(master.PartTypes) But I am getting lost on the other options. EDIT: I am basically trying to search for a master when all of the parts for that master match the PartType field in the detail class. A: If your master.PartTypes is an IEnumerable master.PartTypes = detail.PartTypes.Intersect(master.PartTypes); The fact that you also have master.PartTypes = detail.PartTypes seems to imply that Detail actually contains Parts, which is a bit odd - if it is a separate class/entity then it should be well encapsulated and contain only properties and not have a collection of Parts, or if this is a one-to-many relationship it could be that it is really a collection of PartTypes within the Detail class. That's all I can say without knowing more. EDIT: Or, if you can ensure that your detail.PartType field is unique, then you can just do master.PartTypes = detail.PartTypes.Where(d => d.Id == detail.Id).ToList(); 3da54e8ca3
