The world we live in is so large, and we are getting connected to it so much more these days, that it becomes difficult to separate our lives. In a world that is mobile and information oriented, sometimes we need a tool to help us make sense of all that is going on. I've been a Google fan ever since I can remember, and this morning I wanted to take a look at Google's amazing traffic stats. I've been adding Google services to my site, and have been blown away by the amount of data that I can get. So here's a quick Google Analytics breakdown for you. My numbers are just an example. Please note that they are just for me, and not for all my readers.

Feel free to use these and change as needed. Google Analytics Dashboard - Google's version of an online dashboard. The dashboard has a wealth of statistics, such as site visits, users, visitors, and a lot more. The idea is to enable your visitors and customers to see the site usage in a way that they understand. Automating Office 365 tasks is relatively easy, you need to create a task and automate the process. We will create a task using the Office 365 Tasks API. First, we will set up our Office 365 tenant in Office 365. Then, we will be able to create tasks using the API. Finally, we will convert the task we created in Office 365 to a running task in Outlook. Setting up Office 365 Before we can start, we need to sign into Office 365. Navigate to Office.com/myaccount. What's New in the?

Superb is the best way to describe the movie made by the Peanut Butter Fudge Studio. This is one of the best fable movies that you can find on the internet. Title: The Best Fable Movie 2016 HD 720p Published: 2016-05-05 As we all know, if you have a long list of files to organize and get rid of, the first step is to sort them by size to make sure you are getting rid of junk as you go. But once you have a list of mostly small files, how do you know which ones are the largest? It's easy to just look at the file name but it's more useful to find out where they came from. For example, if I upload a 20 MB photo, that's really big but if the file was 20 KB when it was uploaded, then I can get rid of it since it's not wasting space. But most programs only tell you how big the file is now, not how it was when it was originally uploaded. In the case of My Pictures, it tells me how big the file is when I look at it but it doesn't tell me where the original file came from. This doesn't work in other programs because some have no idea how big the file was in the past. Here's how to know for sure how big your files are. Most photo editing and organizing programs have a tab in the menus to sort photos by size. In most cases, this is called Archive, Size or Original. Most of them let you set it so you only see the biggest or smallest file name. You can also right-click to reveal the file size. But sometimes, it doesn't work. For example, I have an ISO file with about 50,000 images in it. On Windows, you can right-click the file, go to Properties and it tells you the size, but it doesn't tell me where the file came from. There's a good chance it came from a flash drive and was probably only 300-400 MB big but I'm not sure. Same thing with my text documents. Some programs don't have this option at all, some have it but only one size and some have it but only a small list, like the size of your last backup. It's a little confusing. If you want to find out more, check out this video tutorial. It's just over 3 minutes long so you don't have to wait for it to load:
